CERTIFICATIONS IN TEXAS A GENERAL OVERVIEW

Certifications

Introduction

Specialized juvenile justice courts have been in existence since over a century ago when the first formally recognized juvenile court in the United States was established.¹ The first court established in Illinois, arose out of a reform movement to address the deplorable conditions and practices of incarcerating juveniles with adult inmates. Prior to the enactment of specialized juvenile courts; children were handled with adults in court. No special court system for handling cases involving minors existed. After the establishment of the first court dedicated to resolving cases with minors in 1899 the concept of dedicated juvenile courts quickly spread throughout the nation.² Currently every state in the nation and the District of Columbia have dedicated or specialized juvenile courts.

Initially juvenile courts were established under the doctrine of “parens patriae” (literally “the state as parent”).³ Juvenile Courts although originally enacted as a result of children being treated as adults have increasingly enacted provisions to address the more serious juvenile offender. One of the ways that states have addressed this issue is by enacting legislation which allows for the removal of juveniles from the juvenile system to adult criminal courts. Generally there are three basic processes for removing juveniles to adult criminal court utilized throughout the country.

Judicial waiver is the process which a juvenile court judge makes the determination to transfer a child to adult court after a hearing. By far judicial waiver is the most common type of transfer or certification.⁴

³ Sally Green, Prosecutorial Waiver into Adult Criminal Court: A Conflict of Interests Violation Amounting to the States' Legislative Abrogation of Juveniles' Due Process Rights, 110 Penn St. L. Rev. 233 (2005).

⁴ Currently, forty-six states have judicial waiver provisions, in which juvenile court judges clear the way for criminal court prosecutions by waiving jurisdiction over individual juveniles. Under a waiver law, a case against an offender of juvenile age must at least originate in juvenile court; it cannot be channeled elsewhere without a juvenile court judge's formal approval. While all states prescribe standards that must be consulted in waiver decision-making, most leave the decision largely to the judge's discretion (45 states). However, some set up presumptions in favor of waiver in certain classes of cases (15 states), and some even specify circumstances under which waiver is mandatory (15 states). See, Patrick Griffin, National Center for Juvenile Justice “National Overviews,” State Juvenile Justice Profiles, http://www.ncjj.org/stateprofiles/overviews/transfer_state_overview.asp (current through 2004 legislative session) (last visited June 25, 2006).

Automatic waiver, legislative waiver or sometimes referred to as statutory exclusion is the transfer process where certain offenses alleged to have been committed by juveniles are statutorily excluded from juvenile court and original jurisdiction rests with the criminal court. Over half of the states in the country have this process. Commonly referred to as automatic waiver because these statutes remove juvenile court jurisdiction "automatically" and no motion or request from the State or even a decision by the juvenile court judge is required.⁵

Direct file, is the transfer process which gives the prosecution the discretion to determine whether to proceed in juvenile court or criminal court against the juvenile. Direct files places sole discretion with the prosecutor to determine if proceedings will be initiated in juvenile court or criminal court.⁶

In 1973 the Texas legislature promulgated Title III of the Family Code. The enactment of Title III was in response in part to U.S. Supreme Court decisions, increases in juvenile crime and an overall desire for Texas officials to be progressive.⁷ The initial ⁵ Twenty-nine states have statutory exclusion provisions that grant criminal courts original jurisdiction over certain classes of cases involving juveniles. Legislatures in these states have essentially predetermined the question of the appropriate forum for prosecution-taking the decision out of both prosecutors' and judges' hands. Id.

⁶ Fifteen states have direct file laws, which leave it up to prosecutors to decide, at least in specified classes of cases, whether to initiate cases in juvenile or criminal courts. Id.

goals of Title III were

1. to provide for the care, the protection, and the wholesome moral, mental and physical development of children coming within its provisions;

2. to protect the welfare of the community and to control the commission of unlawful acts of children;

3. consistent with the protection of the public interest, to remove from children committing unlawful acts the taint of criminality and the consequences of criminal behavior and to substitute a program of treatment, training, and rehabilitation;

4. to achieve the foregoing purposes in a family environment whenever possible, separating the child from his parents only when necessary for his welfare or in the interest of public safety and when a child is removed from his family, to give him the care that should be provided by parents;

5. to provide a simple judicial procedure through which the provisions of Title Three are executed enforced and in which the parties are assured a fair hearing and their constitutional and other legal rights recognized and enforced.⁸

In Texas the judicial waiver process is used in removing juveniles to adult criminal court and is referred to as discretionary transfer, waiver of jurisdiction or most commonly certification. Discretionary transfer to criminal court or certification allows a juvenile judge to make the determination whether a juvenile respondent is transferred from the juvenile system to the adult criminal system. Although certifications account for a relatively small percentage of proceedings in juvenile court they are extremely important hearings in that the juvenile court is making a decision to transfer a respondent to adult criminal court.⁹

Proceedings in juvenile court are considered civil in nature and have been designed to remove the “taint of criminality from children” and to focus on treatment, training and rehabilitation of the child¹⁰. Once a juvenile is certified to stand trial as an adult all of the protections available in the juvenile system are lost and the adult system takes over.

Texas law establishes basically three types of transfer or waiver of jurisdiction proceedings: hearings where the juvenile respondent is under the age of eighteen at the time of the hearing; hearings where the respondent is an adult or over the age of eighteen at the time of the commencement of the hearing; and the mandatory certification where a person has previously been certified and commits a new eligible offense.

Certification Eligibility

The certification proceedings are initiated by the State filing a motion or petition for discretionary transfer and the issuance of a summons. The minimal requirements necessary for certification bestow on State prosecutors a wide range of discretion in determining which cases to seek certification. However, certifications are usually limited to, the more serious offenses, juveniles with chronic delinquent history, or individuals over eighteen who are accused of committing offenses when they were younger than seventeen.

The juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction over nearly all criminal offenses committed by juveniles.¹¹ Texas Penal Code §8.07(b) states:

[u]nless the juvenile court waives jurisdiction under Section 54.02, Family Code, and certifies the individual for criminal prosecution or the juvenile court has previously waived jurisdiction under that section and certified the individual for criminal prosecution, a person may not be prosecuted for or convicted of any offense committed before reaching 17 years of age except an offense described by Subsections (a)(1)-(5).¹²

It is important to note that the age limitation is considered jurisdictional.¹³ Article 4.18 requires that a defendant or underage child raise the issue of being underage by written motion and the issue must also be presented to the district court judge.¹⁴ If the issue of underage is not raised by written motion in district court then the issue will be considered waived.

Perjury

Generally the age limits for juvenile court to have original jurisdiction of a child exists between the ages of ten and seventeen.¹⁵ However a general exception to this provision deals with perjury offenses.¹⁶ The Family Code §51.03 states “[n]othing in this title prevents criminal proceedings against a child for perjury.”¹⁷ Texas Penal Code §8.07 provides that perjury and aggravated perjury cases may be prosecuted in adult court even against defendants under the age of fifteen.¹⁸

Under Age Eighteen

Section 54.02 of the Family Code establishes when a child under eighteen may be transferred to adult court Section 54.02 generally sets forth three requirements for transfer to adult court:

1. the child is alleged to have violated a penal law of the grade of felony;
2. the child was:
 - a. fourteen or older at the time he is alleged to have committed the offense, if the offense is
 - a capital felony,
 - an aggravated controlled substance felony,¹⁹ or
 - a first degree felony;or
and no adjudication hearing has been conducted concerning that offense;
 - b. fifteen or older at the time he or she allegedly committed
 - a second degree felony,
 - a third degree felony, or
 - a state jail felony;

- and no adjudication hearing has been conducted concerning that offense;
3. after a full investigation and a hearing, the juvenile court finds that:
 - a. there is probable cause to believe that the child committed the offense, and
 - b. because of the seriousness of the offense alleged or the background of the child, the welfare of the community requires criminal proceedings.²⁰

Eighteen Or Older

The Texas Family Code establishes when a respondent age eighteen or over may be certified or transferred to adult criminal court as follows:

1. the person is eighteen or older;
2. the person was:
 - a. ten or older and under seventeen at the time he or she allegedly committed a capital felony or murder;
 - b. fourteen or older and under 17 at the time he or she allegedly committed an aggravated controlled

- substance felony or a first degree felony other than murder, or
- c. fifteen or older and under seventeen at the time he or she allegedly committed a second or third degree felony or a state jail felony;
3. no adjudication concerning the alleged offense has been made or no adjudication hearing concerning the offense has been conducted;
 4. the juvenile court finds from a preponderance of the evidence that:
 - a. for a reason beyond the control of the State, it was not practicable to proceed before the person's eighteenth birthday, or
 - b. after due diligence of the State, it was not practicable to proceed before the person's eighteenth birthday because:
 - the State did not have probable cause to proceed and new evidence has been found since the person's eighteenth birthday;
 - the person could not be found; or
 - a previous transfer order was reversed on appeal or set aside by a district court; and ²⁰ TEX. FAM. CODE § 54.02(a).

5. the juvenile court determines that there is probable cause to believe that the person before the court committed the offense alleged.²¹

In certification hearings involving respondents over the age of eighteen the court only has authority to either waive its jurisdiction or if jurisdiction is not waived to dismiss the State's petition, or motion to transfer, and any petition seeking to adjudicate the respondent delinquent.²²

One of the primary elements of the State's burden in these hearings is providing justification for the delay beyond the respondent's eighteenth birthday.²³ In these types of transfer hearings where the State is initially proceeding after the eighteenth birthday of the respondent demonstrating due diligence is mandatory for the State to meet its burden of transfer. If the State cannot justify the delay in proceeding prior to the juvenile turning eighteen the juvenile court has no jurisdiction to transfer.²⁴ Establishing due diligence is a jurisdictional matter and no harm analysis is necessary.²⁵

The court in Webb, held it is incumbent upon the State to file and conclude the certification hearing before the respondent's eighteenth birthday.²⁶ In Webb, the court opined that the meaning of "proceeding" in juvenile court, meant concluding the hearing before the respondent's eighteenth birthday, agreeing with the trial court.²⁷

The certification provisions establish four justifications for the delay as follows:

1. not practicable to proceed before age eighteen;
2. new evidence discovered;
3. respondent could not be found;

²⁴ See generally, In the Matter of N.M.P., 969 S.W.2d 95 (Tex. In Webb, the State did not establish that the delay in proceeding in juvenile court before the defendant's eighteenth birthday was not beyond its control. In reviewing the decision the court vacated the murder conviction following certification and dismissed the juvenile proceedings for want of jurisdiction. The defect was held to be jurisdictional and no harm analysis was necessary.

Certifications For Capital Murder And Murder

Only individuals eighteen or over who are alleged to have committed either Capital Murder or Murder while between the ages of ten and fourteen can be considered for waiver of jurisdiction or certification to adult court.²⁸ This provision of the family code was promulgated by the legislature with the 1999 amendments to the Texas Family Code. The rationale for this provision is that Capital Murder and Murder have no statute of limitations and the juvenile court would have been able to impose a sentence of commitment to the Texas Youth Commission with a possible transfer to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice for up to a forty year term.²⁹ Before this legislative change, these offenses would not have been eligible for certification if the person was under fourteen at the time the offense allegedly was committed.

If the State, however, was unable to proceed before the eighteenth birthday of the juvenile the juvenile system could not handle the case because the person was over eighteen, and the adult criminal system would also have no jurisdiction since the offense has original jurisdiction with juvenile court.³⁰

Due Process And Constitutional

Safeguards

The Supreme Court articulated minimum levels of constitutional protections and due process necessary in juvenile certification proceedings in a landmark series of cases beginning in 1966 with Kent v. United States.³¹ In Kent the Court stated “the waiver hearing must measure up to the essentials of due process and fair treatment.” Prior to Kent, the states enacted various legislation to set procedures for juvenile proceedings. However, since juvenile courts were operating under the doctrine of “parens patriae” and hearings were deemed civil and not criminal procedural safeguards afforded adults were vastly lacking in juvenile courts. Beginning in Kent and following immediately with Gault the Supreme Court for the first time promulgated constitutional protections applicable to juvenile proceedings. In Gault the Court stated “[j]uvenile court history has again demonstrated that unbridled discretion, however benevolently motivated, is frequently a poor substitute for principle and procedure.”³²

Title III of the Texas Family Code has adopted the constitutional mandates of Kent, and its progeny in affording procedural protections to respondents in certification hearings.³³ Respondents are entitled to due process in that notice of the charges or allegations are required; the right to counsel is not waivable; the right of confrontation is guaranteed; and the privilege against self-incrimination as spelled out in Kent.³⁴

Notice Of Petition Or Motion For Discretionary Transfer

Section 54.02(b) states: “[t]he petition and notice requirements of Sections 53.04, 53.05, 53.06, and 53.07 of this code must be satisfied, and the summons must state that the hearing is for the purpose of considering discretionary transfer to criminal court.”³⁵

The requirements of Section 53.04, mandate that the motion for transfer or petition must state:

1. with reasonable particularity the time, place, and manner of the acts alleged and the penal law or standard of conduct allegedly violated by the acts;
2. the name, age, and residence address, if known, of the child who is the subject of the petition;
3. the names and residence addresses, if known, of the parent, guardian, or custodian of the child and of the child’s spouse, if any; and
4. if the child’s parent, guardian, or custodian does not reside or cannot be found in the state, or if their places of residence are unknown, the name and residence address of any known adult relative residing in the county, or, if there is none, the name and residence address of the known adult relative residing nearest to the location of the court.

Notice to the juveniles parents has been considered mandatory.³⁶ In Carlson v. State, the court reversed a conviction for Aggravated Assault were the juvenile plead guilty; the court opined that “although service upon a parent is a ‘waivable right’ pursuant to the waiver provisions in Section 53.06(e), no such waiver occurred in this case. Neither of appellant’s parents attended the hearing or waived service of the summons in writing. Since the right to service of the summons was not waived, service upon a parent was mandatory.”³⁷ Additionally, the motion must state “that the hearing is for the purpose of considering discretionary transfer to criminal court.”³⁸

Criminal Transaction

Multiple felony offenses pending against the Respondent for which there is probable cause can and should be alleged in the same petition to transfer. If the State files a petition which alleges multiple offenses that constitute more than one criminal transaction, the juvenile court may either retain or transfer all offenses relating to a each transaction. It is important to note that the juvenile court waives jurisdiction over a transaction, not a specific statutory offense, so the court may transfer or retain different criminal transactions.³⁹ Section 54.02(g) states

“[i]f the petition alleges multiple offenses that constitute more than one criminal transaction, the juvenile court shall either retain or transfer all offenses relating to a single transaction. A child is not subject to criminal prosecution at any time for any offense arising out of a criminal transaction for which the juvenile court retains jurisdiction.”

Accordingly, if the court retains jurisdiction over any criminal transaction the respondent is not subject to prosecution for any offense for which the court retains jurisdiction.⁴⁰ The State upon receiving the transferred case in criminal court may charge any offense or offenses supported by probable cause as long as the offense arose out of a criminal transaction that was transferred by the juvenile court.⁴¹ In Allen, the Court established the principal that the juvenile court in deciding to waive or transfer it’s jurisdiction assesses the underlying conduct in the waiver hearing. Accordingly, if a respondent is transferred the adult court not only has jurisdiction over the offense transferred and any lesser included offenses but any conduct that resulted from the same criminal transaction.⁴² As a result of the Allen principal a defendant transferred to adult court can be prosecuted for any offense the State can prove as long as the offense charged is based on conduct from the criminal transaction from which the juvenile court waived jurisdiction.

However, the offense charged by the State must have been an offense for which the respondent was eligible for certification. For example if a respondent is certified for a criminal transaction which occurred at the age of fourteen only the first degree felony may be prosecuted. These situations would prevent the State from charging any lesser included offenses.⁴³

Diagnostic Study, Social Evaluation And Investigation

Prior to the actual certification hearing the juvenile court is required to order and have completed various evaluations and reports.⁴⁴ Section 54.02(d) provides:

“[p]rior to the hearing, the juvenile court shall order and obtain a complete diagnostic study, social evaluation, and full investigation of the child, his circumstances, and the circumstances of the alleged offense.”⁴⁵

Diagnostic Study

The legislature has not established or expressly stated what must be included in a diagnostic study.⁴⁶ However the purpose of this diagnostic study is to assist the court in determining whether to exercise its discretion to either retain or waive its jurisdiction.

Opinions vary regarding the contents of the diagnostic examination but generally the report is a forensic examination by a clinical psychologist or psychiatrist and social investigation by the juvenile probation department. The report generally addresses such issues as the child’s sophistication, maturity, background and family history.⁴⁷

The provisions of Section 54.02(d) are mandatory and apply to transfer hearings regardless of the age of the respondent. The only exception are certifications where the state is seeking automatic or “mandatory” transfer proceedings conducted pursuant to the Texas Family Code.⁴⁸ If the court fails to order the diagnostic study, evaluation or investigation or to consider the reports in the discretionary transfer hearing the certification hearing is subject to being reversed by a reviewing court.⁴⁹ In R.E.M. v. State, the court stated:

Section 54.02(d) is mandatory.... It is impossible to read Title 3 of the Family Code...without reaching the conclusion that its effect is to give to a juvenile offender the right not to be treated as an adult offender unless he is divested of that right by judicial order entered after complying with the requirements set forth in Section 54.02. The necessary conclusion is that, in the absence of an effective waiver by the child, he can be subjected to treatment as an adult only if there has been compliance with the mandatory provisions of Section 54.02.⁵⁰

Although it is mandatory for the court to order a diagnostic evaluation, the respondent may choose to exercise his Fifth Amendment right and not answer questions. Further, the use of the examination results have limited results in a adult criminal proceeding if a juvenile is certified to stand trial as an adult. When the psychological examination is used both as the basis of the examiner’s determination that the juvenile should be transferred and as a source of incriminating evidence introduced at trial, it requires additional constitutional safeguards.⁵¹ When used only for its intended purpose, the examination has been held not to be considered a custodial interrogation; however, when the State seeks to use the examination in a subsequent criminal proceeding then the examination serves a dual purpose. In Cantu v. State, the court held that notwithstanding the neutral nature of the psychological examination, the statements a juvenile utters during the examination are not automatically removed from the reach of the Fifth Amendment, if a juvenile is not adequately informed of his Fifth Amendment rights with respect to the diagnostic examination or that his testimony during that examination would be used against him in an adjudicatory proceeding, a waiver of his rights is ineffective.⁵²

Full Investigation

Also not defined in certification statutes is the term “full investigation of the child, his circumstances, and the circumstances of the alleged offense.”⁵³ In looking at this provision one Texas court opined “[t]he phrase ‘full investigation of the circumstances of the offense’ is not defined in section 54.02. We believe that for good reasons the legislature did not attempt to define the phrase.

Of necessity, any inquiry into the circumstances of an offense must be one of degree. It is a matter of common knowledge that the course and scope of an investigation will vary according to the circumstances surrounding the event.”⁵⁴

The certification statutes allow the juvenile court judge to consider and admit written reports from probation officers and other professionals.⁵⁵ The mandatory procedures enunciated in Section 54.02(d) are established with the purpose of providing the court information sufficient enough to make an informed decision regarding waiving jurisdiction. Although mandatory these procedures must be balanced against the constitutional protections afforded respondents facing transfer to criminal court.. Section 54.02(e) seeks to strike a balance by requiring disclosure to counsel for the Respondent prior to the certification hearing⁵⁶. Accordingly, an attorney for ⁵⁷ See e.g., In K.W.M. v. State, 598 S.W.2d 660 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston[14th Dist.] 1980, no writ) (the court stated that section 54.02(d) does not require a court to order that the child discuss his involvement in the offense, no self-incriminatory statements are required, and if any custodial statement will be used in a later criminal trial, then the Family Code protections must be provided).

⁵⁸ In R.E.M. v. State, 541 S.W.2d 841 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1976, writ ref'd n.r.e.), the respondent refused to cooperate with the professionals who tried to interview him, then claimed on appeal that the report was incomplete. The court stated: “[w]e are not inclined to hold that the statute requires the accomplishment of that which is impossible due to appellant’s attitude.” R.E.M., 541 S.W.2d at 845. The court in R.E.M. held that Texas Family Code 51.09 precluded a waiver of the diagnostic study where the child asserted his right to remain silent, but did not waive his right to the study. Later cases hold that the respondent’s failure to cooperate does not waive the right to the study, but will prevent the child from arguing on appeal that the study was incomplete. See Ortega v. State, unpublished, No. 05-00-00086-CR, 2002 WL 14163 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2002); In the Matter of J.S.C., 875 S.W.2d 325 (Tex.App.—Corpus Christi 1994, writ dismissed); and In the Matter of C.C., 930 S.W.2d 929 (Tex. App.—Austin 1996, no writ).

are conducted by the court without a jury.⁵⁹ Specifically, §54.02(c) provides: “[t]he juvenile court shall conduct a hearing without a jury to consider transfer of the child for criminal proceedings.”⁶⁰ The absence of a jury trial is consistent with the dictates of both state and federal law, since it has been held that juveniles are not constitutionally entitled to jury trials in juvenile proceedings.⁶¹ No deprivation of any constitutional right should be construed in the absence of juries in the certification hearing. Although a right to jury is not available in certification hearings, a waiver hearing before the court is mandatory prior to a court exercising its jurisdiction and transferring a respondent to adult criminal court.⁶²

Further it has been well settled that certification proceedings are not trials on the merits, but hearings to determine whether the juvenile court will waive its original jurisdiction and transfer the case to adult criminal court for trial or retain its jurisdiction and keep the proceedings in juvenile court.⁶³

in a certification proceeding.⁶⁴ It has been held that proceeding with the transfer hearing without the presence of counsel for the juvenile is reversible error.⁶⁵ It is well established that a juvenile is entitled to the effective assistance of counsel at a certification hearing.⁶⁶ In Kent, the court stated “[t]he right to representation by counsel is not a formality. It is not a grudging gesture to a ritualistic requirement. It is of the essence of justice.”⁶⁷ The ineffectiveness of counsel in juvenile cases is measured by the *Strickland v. Evidence

The certification statutes do not expressly promulgate the evidentiary procedures which must be adhered to in waiver hearings, however, the Texas Rules of Evidence provides in pertinent part “[e]xcept as otherwise provided by statute, these rules govern civil and criminal proceedings (including examining trials before magistrates) in all courts of Texas, except small claims courts.”⁶⁹

Many courts have opined that the Texas Rules of Evidence are not applicable in certification proceedings; the primary rationale for this position was that the court needed to make a determination as to whether a grand jury would indict. However with the amendments to the statute effective in 1996 the grand jury provision was repealed.⁷⁰ The issue of hearsay as well as the application of the Sixth Amendment Confrontation clause in certification hearings have been addressed by some appellate courts.⁷¹ However neither of the state’s highest courts, the Texas Supreme Court or Court of Criminal Appeals, have yet to address this issue. It is settled that Texas Rules of Evidence applicable to criminal cases are to be used in certification proceedings.⁷²

⁷² TEX. FAM. CODE § 51.17 (c).

In the seminal case, Kent v. United States, the Supreme Court articulated factors which were determinative in addressing whether a judge should waive its jurisdiction and transfer a case to adult criminal court.⁷³ The factors articulated by the Court were

1. The seriousness of the alleged offense to the community and whether the protection of the community requires waiver.

2. Whether the alleged offense was committed in an aggressive, violent, premeditated or willful manner.

3. Whether the alleged offense was against persons or against property, greater weight being given to offenses against persons especially if personal injury resulted.

4. The prosecutive merit of the complaint, i.e., whether there is evidence upon which a Grand Jury may be expected to return an indictment (to be determined by consultation with the United States Attorney).

5. The desirability of trial and disposition of the entire offense in one court when the juvenile's associates in the alleged offense are adults who will be charged with a crime in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

6. The sophistication and maturity of the juvenile as determined by consideration of his home, environmental situation, emotional attitude and pattern of living.

7. The record and previous history of the juvenile, including previous contacts with the Youth Aid Division, other law enforcement agencies, juvenile courts and other jurisdictions, prior periods of probation to this Court, or prior commitments to juvenile institutions.

8. The prospects for adequate protection of the public and the likelihood of reasonable rehabilitation of the juvenile (if he is found to have committed the alleged offense) by the use of procedures, services and facilities currently available to the Juvenile Court.⁷⁴

The Texas provision of the certification statute §54.02(f) adopts and incorporates the Kent, factors which were promulgated to provide constitutional safeguards to juvenile respondents in transfer hearings.⁷⁵ Section 54.02(f) requires the juvenile court to consider the following factors in making the decision to waive jurisdiction:

1. whether the alleged offense was against person or property, with greater weight in favor of transfer given to offenses against the person;

2. the sophistication and maturity of the child;

3. the record and previous history of the child; and

4. the prospects of adequate protection of the public and the likelihood of the rehabilitation of the child by use of procedures, services, and facilities currently available to the juvenile court.⁷⁶

This list is not exhaustive, in that the court may consider other factors which it deems appropriate in determining whether to transfer a case to criminal court. However the court must “consider” the statutory factors in making its determination.⁷⁷

Required Findings

There are five basic requirements that must be established before the juvenile court may waive its jurisdiction. Prior to transfer the court must make the following findings:

1. the child is alleged to have committed a felony;
2. the child was:

a. fourteen or older at the time he or she allegedly committed a capital felony, an aggravated controlled substance felony, or a first degree felony, or

b. fifteen or older at the time he or she allegedly committed any other felony;

3. no adjudication hearing has been conducted concerning the offense;

4. there is probable cause to believe that the child before the court committed the alleged offense; and

5. because of the seriousness of the offense or the background of the child, the welfare of the community requires criminal proceedings.⁷⁸

If the court is proceeding under a hearing where the respondent is over eighteen the court must make the additional findings regarding due diligence.⁷⁹ The burden is on the State to prove the allegations in the petition or motion for discretionary transfer by a preponderance of the evidence.

Community Welfare Provision

Of most important in a court’s consideration to transfer a juvenile to adult court is whether the evidence dictates that the welfare of the community requires transfer to adult

⁷⁶ TEX. FAM. CODE § 54.02(a). The legislative changes which took effect in January 1, 1996, eliminated two factors: whether the offense was committed in an aggressive and premeditated manner and whether there was evidence on which a grand jury could be expected to return an indictment.

⁷⁷ In the Matter of J.R.C., 551 S.W.2d 748 (Tex.Civ.App.—Texarkana 1977, writ ref’d n.r.e.)

criminal court.⁸⁰ This finding will be reviewed by an appellate court on legal and factual sufficiency grounds.⁸¹ If the evidence is deemed legally insufficient on appellate review the respondent may not be transferred to adult court since judgment should be rendered for the respondent and the waiver petition dismissed with prejudice.⁸²

Criminal Transaction

When a juvenile court waives its jurisdiction and transfers a juvenile respondent to adult criminal court it is not actually transferring the respondent for all purposes. In essence what the juvenile court is waiving jurisdiction for a particular criminal conduct or transaction.⁸³ Section 54.02(g) of the Family Code states

[i]f the petition alleges multiple offenses that constitute more than one criminal transaction, the juvenile court shall either retain or transfer all offenses relating to a single transaction. A child is not subject to criminal prosecution at any time for any offense arising out of a criminal transaction for which the juvenile court retains jurisdiction⁸⁴.

Order

Although courts are required to give its reasons for transfer in its order it is well settled that juvenile courts have wide latitude in determining whether to retain or waive jurisdiction in a certification proceeding⁸⁵. In reviewing a court's order to transfer a reviewing court will defer to the trial court's findings.

Mandatory Certification

Once Certified Always Certified

The third basic type of certification in Texas is often referred to as "mandatory certification."⁸⁶ The mandatory provisions were enacted with the advent of the legislative changes in 1995. The provisions of the code establishing the mandatory transfer proceedings basically codifies the doctrine or practice of "once certified always certified." Although the statute is commonly referred to as mandatory certification the process is not automatic and not all inclusive. The prosecutor has discretion whether to seek a mandatory transfer or not. However, if the State does seek transfer under this provision and the requirements of the statute are complied with, the juvenile court must transfer the case. Mandatory transfer requires:

1. the child was previously transferred to criminal court for criminal proceedings; and ⁸⁰ TEX. FAM. CODE § 54.02(a)(3).

⁸¹ Green v. State, unpublished, No. 05-97-01176-CR, 1999 WL 783734, 1999 Tex. App. Lexis 7328, Juvenile Law Newsletter 99-4-14 (Tex.App.—Dallas 10/4/99).

⁸² See generally, In the Matter of A.T.S., 694 S.W.2d 252 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1985 (Appellate Court held evidence did not support transfer hearing since offense committed was crime of "juvenile nature").

⁸⁵ See generally, TEX. FAM. CODE §54.02(h).

⁸⁶ TEX. FAM. CODE §54.02(m).

2. the child has allegedly committed a new felony offense before becoming seventeen years old.

The mandatory transfer provision do not apply if at the time of the transfer hearing:

1. the child was not indicted by the grand jury in the matter transferred;
2. the child was found not guilty in the matter transferred;
3. the matter transferred was dismissed with prejudice; or
4. the child was convicted in the matter transferred, the conviction was reversed on appeal, and the appeal is final.⁸⁷

Of major importance to this provision is the requirement that the respondent was previously certified to adult court and a valid transfer order exists and a new felony offense is alleged.⁸⁸ Additionally, the case which the respondent was previously certified to adult court must be final and not have resulted in an acquittal, dismissal prior to indictment, no billed or reversed on appeal.⁸⁹

Once the statutory provisions are met transfer to adult court is mandatory; hence the term “mandatory certification.” These procedures were designed to expedite the transfer process and increase judicial economy.⁹⁰ This streamlined process does away with the requirements of obtaining a complete diagnostic study, social investigation and investigation of the child and the circumstances of the alleged offense. Although the statute calls for an extremely streamlined process and does not address additional proof requirements it should be concluded that probable cause demonstrating the respondent committed a felony offense would still be necessary to be shown by the State.⁹¹

Appeals

A juvenile respondent has a right to appeal the decision of a juvenile court transferring jurisdiction to adult court; however, this right has been severely curtailed. Prior to the 1995 legislative changes to the Family Code direct appeals to the Court of Appeals, then possible review by the Texas Supreme Court were available.⁹² Effective with offenses occurring after January 1, 1996, the right to take a direct appeal from a certification order was eliminated.⁹³ Presently, Texas law provides that an appeal from a transfer order may be taken only after a conviction and direct appeal in adult criminal court.⁹⁴ This joint appeal may include claims of error which occurred in the transfer hearing along with any errors from the adult criminal conviction.⁹⁵ Additionally, the criminal rules are applicable in the appellate process which result in ultimate state review by the Court of Criminal Appeals instead of the Texas Supreme Court.

Miscellaneous Certification

Two essentially identical provisions of the juvenile mental health statutes allow for “automatic” transfer of certain cases to adult criminal court.⁹⁶ These statutes states

1. The juvenile court shall transfer all pending proceedings from the juvenile court to a criminal court on the eighteenth birthday of a child for whom the juvenile court or a court to which the child’s case is referred under Section 55.12(2) has ordered inpatient mental health services if:

a. The child is not discharged or furloughed from the inpatient mental health facility before reaching eighteen years of age; and

b. The child is alleged to have engaged in delinquent conduct that included a violation of a penal law listed in Section 53.045 and no adjudication concerning the alleged conduct has been made.⁹⁷

These provisions require transfer to adult court juveniles charged with offenses under the Determinate Sentence Act who remain confined under a commitment order at the age of eighteen. Section 55.44 permits adult criminal proceedings when the respondent is competent to stand trial after age eighteen and is charged with an offense under the Determinate Sentence Act. There has been minimal use or litigation of these provisions however the juvenile court has no discretion in its application⁹⁸.

Conclusion

Certifications of juveniles in Texas account for roughly one percent of all juvenile referrals. Although this comprises a relatively small number of juvenile proceedings, these hearings are of utmost importance. Upon transfer to adult court the juvenile protections and safeguards which have been mandated in Texas law since the Gault decision are lost and adult provisions and statutes become applicable.

§ 54.02. Waiver of Jurisdiction and Discretionary Transfer to Criminal Court

(a) The juvenile court may waive its exclusive original jurisdiction and transfer a child to the appropriate district court or criminal district court for criminal proceedings if:

(1) the child is alleged to have violated a penal law of the grade of felony;

(2) the child was:

(A) 14 years of age or older at the time he is alleged to have committed the offense, if the offense is a capital felony, an aggravated controlled substance felony, or a felony of the first degree, and no adjudication hearing has been conducted concerning that offense; or

(B) 15 years of age or older at the time the child is alleged to have committed the offense, if the offense is a felony of the second or third degree or a state jail felony, and no adjudication hearing has been conducted concerning that offense; and

(3) after a full investigation and a hearing, the juvenile court determines that there is probable cause to believe that the child before the court committed the offense alleged and that because of the seriousness of the offense alleged or the background of the child the welfare of the community requires criminal proceedings.

(b) The petition and notice requirements of Sections 53.04, 53.05, 53.06, and 53.07 of this code must be satisfied, and the summons must state that the hearing is for the purpose of considering discretionary transfer to criminal court.

(c) The juvenile court shall conduct a hearing without a jury to consider transfer of the child for criminal proceedings.

(d) Prior to the hearing, the juvenile court shall order and obtain a complete diagnostic study, social evaluation, and full investigation of the child, his circumstances, and the circumstances of the alleged offense.

(e) At the transfer hearing the court may consider written reports from probation officers, professional court employees, or professional consultants in addition to the testimony of witnesses. At least one day prior to the transfer hearing, the court shall provide the attorney for the child with access to all written matter to be considered by the court in making the transfer decision. The court may order counsel not to reveal items to the child or his parent, guardian, or guardian ad litem if such disclosure would materially harm the treatment and rehabilitation of the child or would substantially decrease the likelihood of receiving information from the same or similar sources in the future.

(f) In making the determination required by Subsection (a) of this section, the court shall consider, among other matters:

(1) whether the alleged offense was against person or property, with greater weight in favor of transfer given to offenses against the person;

(2) the sophistication and maturity of the child;

(3) the record and previous history of the child; and

(4) the prospects of adequate protection of the public and the likelihood of the rehabilitation of the child by use of procedures, services, and facilities currently available to the juvenile court.

(g) If the petition alleges multiple offenses that constitute more than one criminal transaction, the juvenile court shall either retain or transfer all offenses relating to a single transaction. A child is not subject to criminal prosecution at any time for any offense arising out of a criminal transaction for which the juvenile court retains jurisdiction.

(h) If the juvenile court waives jurisdiction, it shall state specifically in the order its reasons for waiver and certify its action, including the written order and findings of the court, and shall transfer the person to the appropriate court for criminal proceedings and cause the results of the diagnostic study of the person ordered under Subsection (d), including psychological information, to be transferred to the appropriate criminal prosecutor. On transfer of the person for criminal proceedings, the person shall be dealt with as an adult and in accordance with the Code of Criminal Procedure. The transfer of custody is an arrest.

(i) A waiver under this section is a waiver of jurisdiction over the child and the criminal court may not remand the child to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

(j) The juvenile court may waive its exclusive original jurisdiction and transfer a person to the appropriate district court or criminal district court for criminal proceedings if:

(1) the person is 18 years of age or older;

(2) the person was:

(A) 10 years of age or older and under 17 years of age at the time the person is alleged to have committed a capital felony or an offense under Section 19.02, Penal Code;

(B) 14 years of age or older and under 17 years of age at the time the person is alleged to have committed an aggravated controlled substance felony or a felony of the first degree other than an offense under Section 19.02, Penal Code; or

(C) 15 years of age or older and under 17 years of age at the time the person is alleged to have committed a felony of the second or third degree or a state jail felony;

(3) no adjudication concerning the alleged offense has been made or no adjudication hearing concerning the offense has been conducted;

(4) the juvenile court finds from a preponderance of the evidence that:

(A) for a reason beyond the control of the state it was not practicable to proceed in juvenile court before the 18th birthday of the person; or

(B) after due diligence of the state it was not practicable to proceed in juvenile court before the 18th birthday of the person because:

(i) the state did not have probable cause to proceed in juvenile court and new evidence has been found since the 18th birthday of the person;

(ii) the person could not be found; or

(iii) a previous transfer order was reversed by an appellate court or set aside by a district court; and

(5) the juvenile court determines that there is probable cause to believe that the child before the court committed the offense alleged.

(k) The petition and notice requirements of Sections 53.04, 53.05, 53.06, and 53.07 of this code must be satisfied, and the summons must state that the hearing is for the purpose of considering waiver of jurisdiction under Subsection (j) of this section.

(1) The juvenile court shall conduct a hearing without a jury to consider waiver of jurisdiction under Subsection (j) of this section.

(m) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the juvenile court shall waive its exclusive original jurisdiction and transfer a child to the appropriate district court or criminal court for criminal proceedings if:

(1) the child has previously been transferred to a district court or criminal district court for criminal proceedings under this section, unless:

(A) the child was not indicted in the matter transferred by the grand jury;

(B) the child was found not guilty in the matter transferred;

(C) the matter transferred was dismissed with prejudice; or

(D) the child was convicted in the matter transferred, the conviction was reversed on appeal, and the appeal is final; and

(2) the child is alleged to have violated a penal law of the grade of felony.

(n) A mandatory transfer under Subsection (m) may be made without conducting the study required in discretionary transfer proceedings by Subsection (d). The requirements of Subsection (b) that the summons state that the purpose of the hearing is to consider discretionary transfer to criminal court does not apply to a transfer proceeding under Subsection (m). In a proceeding under Subsection (m), it is sufficient that the summons provide fair notice that the purpose of the hearing is to consider mandatory transfer to criminal court.

(o) If a respondent is taken into custody for possible discretionary transfer proceedings under Subsection (j), the juvenile court shall hold a detention hearing in the same manner as provided by Section 54.01, except that the court shall order the respondent released unless it finds that the respondent:

(1) is likely to abscond or be removed from the jurisdiction of the court;

(2) may be dangerous to himself or herself or may threaten the safety of the public if released; or

(3) has previously been found to be a delinquent child or has previously been convicted of a penal offense punishable by a term of jail or prison and is likely to commit an offense if released.

(p) If the juvenile court does not order a respondent released under Subsection (o), the court shall, pending the conclusion of the discretionary transfer hearing, order that the respondent be detained in:

(1) a certified juvenile detention facility as provided by Subsection (q); or

(2) an appropriate county facility for the detention of adults accused of criminal offenses.

(q) The detention of a respondent in a certified juvenile detention facility must comply with the detention requirements under this title, except that, to the extent practicable, the person shall be kept separate from children detained in the same facility.

(r) If the juvenile court orders a respondent detained in a county facility under Subsection (p), the county sheriff shall take custody of the respondent under the juvenile court's order. The juvenile court shall set or deny bond for the respondent as required by the Code of Criminal Procedure and other law applicable to the pretrial detention of adults accused of criminal offenses.
